MESSAGE FROM THE PROGRAM COMMITTEE

Welcome to your (home) office, living room couch, breakfast table, or mobile device for the 22nd Annual Conference of the American Society for Bioethics and Humanities! Amid the din of the ever-present news cycle; co-working, caregiving, or parenting demands; and fretting about the general state of all things, ASBH is meeting online for the first time. We are aware that 2020 is the year of uncertainty. The year of the absurd! The year of challenges. And in response to those challenges, we see it as the year of opportunity: to work, to raise our voices, to focus on what matters.

Understanding the incredible demands on our members in this moment, the ASBH Program Committee and executive leadership designed a conference that draws on the strengths of virtual meetings:

- The conference spans from Monday to Sunday, with less programming per day.
- Programming occurs mostly during workday hours across all time zones.
- Paper and flash sessions are prerecorded for viewing at your convenience starting on Monday, with live Q&A sessions scheduled Thursday through Sunday.
- All other sessions will be live beginning on Wednesday, and they will be recorded for later viewing.
- Prerecorded and recorded (live) sessions will be viewable for 30 days after the conference concludes (through November 17, 2020).

As with so many other aspects of life at the moment, we are disappointed that going virtual means we lose in-person social interaction. We will miss seeing our colleagues, friends, and frenemies in Baltimore. So we invite you to get creative. Do some e-mingling during the Wednesday night reception. Use your social media skills with the tag #ASBH20 on Twitter, Facebook, and LinkedIn under @AmerSocBioHum. If you aren't "social" in that way, go old school. Set up a conference call, send some e-mails, post on a blog, or write a letter to send in the post.

Planning for the annual conference always takes an enormous amount of work. The Program Committee thanks our reviewers and category leaders—without their hundreds of volunteer hours, we could not select high-quality presentations for you. We also thank Virginia Bartlett for serving as an ad hoc Program Committee member this year when we needed a bit more help than expected. ASBH President Ana Iltis and President-Elect Kayhan Parsi provided crucial support, both generally and especially as we thought through the implications of COVID-19 on our conference planning. And Mary Beth Benner and Talia Lionetti supported all the planning and logistical aspects of the conference, which were considerable. Without them we could not have accomplished the modest goals we had for improving our October 2019 conference, and we certainly could not have transformed the meeting to an online conference on the fly.

We hope you find that the 2020 ASBH conference program meets your needs and stimulates your thinking. More than anything, though, we hope you find that the changes we have made to adapt to the moment make the programming accessible and enrich your professional, and perhaps personal, life. Thank you for attending.

With gratitude,

Thomas Cunningham, PhD, Chair
Virginia L. Bartlett, PhD

A WELCOMING ENVIRONMENT AND ACCESSIBILITY

ASBH aims to provide a welcoming and accessible environment for all conference attendees and participants. Comprehensive information on accessibility is available on the ASBH 2020 Annual Conference web page.

Productive Engagement

ASBH supports an environment of productive engagement, where the free expression of diverse points of view occurs in an atmosphere of scholarly exchange and mutual respect. Conference attendees, participants, and vendors are expected to observe commonsense norms for public behavior, personal interaction, and common courtesy. Abusive, harassing, or threatening behavior is not acceptable.

GRAPHIC DESIGN CONTEST

For the first time in ASBH history, the 2020 Program Committee invited submissions of original art providing interpretations of the conference theme: Justice and Flourishing in a Pluralistic World. Thirteen submissions were received from both members and nonmembers. The winning design and the two designs receiving honorable mentions are shown below, along with the artists' explanations.

First-Place Design

The winning submission was used as the graphic theme of the 2020 Annual Conference and appears on the cover of this program notebook.

Artist: Joanna Sleigh

This work reflects upon justice and flourishing in our contemporary pluralistic context of public health issues and climate change. Further, it questions notions of control through the production of scientific knowledge. Contained within circular petri dish-like forms are symbols of justice, health, and nature. The allegorical personification of justice—lady Lustitia—is set within a satellite picture of the blue melting Arctic ice, placed upon a microscopic photograph of human blood cells. An opaque medical illustration of lungs hangs from Lustitia's scales, using transparency and placement to suggest the interconnection of human health and the health of the earth. Contrasting these solidities and bonding them together are dark lines of fluidity, evoking flows of change. The concept of flourishing is then represented through the binary code of 0 and 1, questioning our understanding of the term, given technological reductionism. Ultimately, the work juxtaposes and unites macro and micro issues of human and environmental health.

Honorable Mentions

Two designs were chosen for honorable mention.

Artist: Gregg Chadwick

With millions of others, my wife, transgender daughter, and I marched on January 21, 2017, in the #WomensMarch. Our crowd in Los Angeles numbered about 750,000. My artwork, which I titled The Future Is Woke, was the first in a series of paintings exploring this time of change and inclusivity. Artists often use their creations as a reflecting device that mirrors and focuses the viewer's attention on social and political change. As Marvin Gaye sang so poignantly, "What's going on." Carrying the spirit of the Women's March forward, my paintings document the protests that continue to call out the injustices in our society. From the Science March to the 2nd Annual Women's March to the Families Belong Together gatherings, my art considers the place of social justice in our society and what it means for all of us to flourish together.

Artist: Lisa Dubitsky

Disability can isolate us, or we can come together on this rocky journey. We are all gazing into the abyss. This is my mother, who was overstimulated at a museum and asked to face the quiet wall. She was peaceful and safe there. I realized that my once fiery and glamorous mother, who took me to protests and Pete Seeger concerts, now needed serenity and courted loneliness. Her trajectory inspired me to paint this.

HEC-C Practice Exam

Developed by the ASBH Clinical Ethics Consultation Affairs (CECA) Committee, the practice exam is designed to help candidates prepare for the Healthcare Ethics Consultant-Certified (HEC-C) Examination. CECA Committee members used the publicly available certification examination content outline and core references to develop practice questions similar in format to those that will appear on the examination.

The HEC-C Practice Exam features

- 50 multiple-choice questions
- a report (provided upon completion of the exam) giving the correct answer, rationale, and reference for each question
- recommended readings for each question
- mapping to the HEC-C Examination content outline to help candidates select areas for further study.

Note. Success on the practice exam does not guarantee positive results on the certification examination.

Order the HEC-C Practice Exam at asbh.org.

Clinical Ethics Consultation Bundle

Buy all three ASBH publications related to healthcare ethics consulting and receive a discount. The Clinical Ethics Consultation Bundle* includes three ASBH publications and provides a foundation for identifying core competencies, improving those competencies, and applying them to complex clinical cases. All three publications are core references for the HEC-C Examination:

- Core Competencies for Healthcare Ethics Consultation, 2nd Edition
- Improving Competencies in Clinical Ethics Consultation: An Education Guide, 2nd Edition
- Addressing Patient-Centered Ethical Issues in Health Care: A Case-Based Study Guide

These publications may also be purchased individually.*

Order the Clinical Ethics Consultation Bundle at asbh.org.

HEALTHCARE ETHICS CONSULTING

EXTENDS BEYOND IN-PERSON CONSULTATIONS.

See how you may already be earning your eligibility hours for each domain of the HEC-C content outline.

ASSESSMENT

- Did you participate in gathering information that helped form an analysis for an ethics case?
- Did you serve as a peer reviewer for a colleague who asked for your input on the gathered data?

ANALYSIS

- Did you research your institution's policies or state laws and provide that information to others to address an ethical question?
- Did you apply principles and frameworks that helped address an ethical question?

PROCESS

- Did you explain to patients, families, or clinicians what to expect as part of the consultation process?
- Did you facilitate a team-only healthcare ethics meeting?

EVALUATION AND QUALITY IMPROVEMENT

- Did you survey clinicians about their experience with a specific ethics consultation?
- Did you prepare an evaluation of a consultation for internal recording or quality improvement?

Visit asbh.org/certification/hec-c-eligibility to see how your experience makes you eligible for the HEC-C exam. All qualified candidates may take the HEC-C exam from home or work computers via remote testing or at a traditional test center.

BE A LEADER IN THE EVOLUTION OF HEALTHCARE ETHICS CONSULTING.

As a dedicated healthcare ethics professional, you may be on the front lines of patient care and facing unique ethical questions in the current healthcare landscape. The Healthcare Ethics Consultant-Certified (HEC-C) program helps distinguish your role as a healthcare ethics consultant and showcase your ability to

- assess factual information about healthcare ethics concerns
- analyze the ethical questions at hand to resolve issues and conflicts
- use consistent processes that align with healthcare ethics competencies
- evaluate the outcomes and implications of your healthcare ethics consultations.

You can earn your HEC-C credential no matter where you are.

We know the importance of adhering to social distancing protocols and making certification accessible to all who qualify. All qualified candidates are now able to take the HEC-C exam from their home or work computers through remote testing.

Visit asbh.org to learn how remote testing works and whether taking the HEC-C exam at home makes sense for you.

Lifetime Achievement Award

Ezekiel J. Emanuel, MD PhD MSc

Ezekiel J. Emanuel is the vice provost for global initiatives, the Diane v. S. Levy and Robert M. Levy University Professor, and codirector of the Healthcare Transformation Institute at the University of Pennsylvania. From January 2009 to January 2011, he served as a special advisor on health policy to the director of the U.S. Office of Management and Budget and the National Economic Council. He was the founding chair of the Department of Bioethics at the National Institutes of Health from 1997 to August 2011. He received his MD from Harvard Medical School and his PhD in political philosophy from Harvard University. A widely cited bioethicist, Dr. Emanuel is the author or editor of 15 books and has published more than 300 articles, mainly on healthcare reform, research ethics, and end-of-life care. His newest book, Which Country Has the World's Best Health Care? was published in June 2020.
